

Are you a GENUINE 'TRUE BLOOD' Donor?

When you think of the words Blood and Donor, a blood drive usually comes to mind. A traditional blood drive is an aggressive request for volunteer donors of blood plasma to build reserve blood for future usage. It is most often stored and used in emergency life saving situations.

A GENUINE True Blood Donor is also a volunteer because he or she is naturally endowed with the character that supports the sustenance of life. He or she is a life support person who gives monetary, in-kind or volunteer services to preserve humanity. They will provide support that will enable humanitarian service providers to build the capacity of human beings, helping them to overcome life obstacles and achieve a better way of life. They provide emergency assistance as they give willingly and freely to those in life and death situations. They become enabling entities that provide access to those in need to the basic necessities of life for daily survival. They support those that are struggling to live as they provide 'a breath of fresh air' by their charity and their spirit of good will: this inspires the depressed to push forward through painful situations and encourages them to endure. They give unselfishly so that others can have access to opportunities that prepare them for a better life in the near future. They support and contribute to the development of good humanitarian systems by giving their time and contributions which then allows these systems to expand their capacity to serve the needs of suffering humanity. A Genuine TRUE BLOOD is the real champion behind the delivery of charitable services to humanity.

A True Blood, on the other hand, no matter the race or nationality belongs to one family of super human beings who naturally respond to truth and justice. They are supporters of life and champion the development of policy and activities that support global peace and welfare. They are NOT supporters of policies that cause 'Blood Baths' but are verbal and active advocates of PEACE and sustainable human development.

To further highlight the character and qualities of a 'True Blood' Donor we need to carefully review some of the definitions of the words: Blood, Oxygen and True. Blood as defined by Webster's New World Dictionary fourth edition is a body tissue that carries oxygen, hormones, cell-building materials, etc to and carbon dioxide and waste matter away from, the other body cells. Blood also bears relationship by descent in the same family line; and lineage. Another definition refers to it being the 'life blood. A slang term calls 'Blood' a Black person, more specifically a black male. The word Oxygen is defined as a colorless, odorless chemical element that is essential to life. Meanwhile, the word true according to Webster's' fourth edition has many meanings such as: to be firm, accurate, honest, lawful: one who conforms to the original standard and discipline of universal order, one that protects the environment, and one that is truthful and real. All the defining aspects of these words are a part of the inherited traits of A True Blood.

In sum, if you are a true blood you are an individual that no matter your race or identity have inherited the ability to be color-less, you show no favoritism to the rich. You are able to discern right from wrong regardless of your upbringing and therefore capable of effecting just and fair actions and decisions in your daily life. Your actions are always consistent with supporting what is just, right and truthful. You are a vital distributor of necessary life support elements that preserve health, life and humanity eternally.

If you are a black man or woman true 'blood', you believe as any other true blood family member that you must become active in helping to support causes that aid those who are suffering and need help. You have always wanted to take action toward increasing the quality of life of others even though you personally have suffered too. Education and indoctrination have made you to feel your contribution is worthless. You must be made aware that you too are a valuable contributor to the life force that can heal society, and thus you must re-energize yourself and work to contribute to systems that will bring solutions to this troubled world. Know that giving to others will help you to sustain and meet your daily and future needs. Take the action now to deliver your people and other suffering humanity from torture and pain. You too, a True blood, are a vital contributor to the preservation of life eternally.

And finally, way deep inside, no matter your nationality as a True Blood, you will support the ideal society of Global peace and advocate the development of policy that structures a decent quality of life and welfare for all humanity. You are the life support system committed to the upkeep of humanitarian services that value life and protect the human rights of all of the earth's global citizens.

Whether black, white or of other descendents as, a true blood- you have become as colorless and odorless as oxygen, you have been endowed with a true, genuine and just character, always in search of the truth. You have become a life force active in the mission of preservation of Life.
